

EDITORIAL

The UDS International Journal of Development (UDSIJD) is out with its first issue for this year (Vol. 6, No. 1, 2019). There are ten papers in this Issue – three in the Health Sciences, six in the Agricultural Sciences and one in Humanities.

The UDSIJJ focuses on articles in varied disciplines which are development oriented. The Journal continues to provide on a regular basis scholarly research outputs that help inform policy analysis and topical issues.

We therefore aim to inspire prolific academic researchers, policy makers, industrialists and influencers to make submissions that will promote local, continental and international research. The UDSIJJ will continue with its Open Access policy which makes it possible to report to a global viewership on our open access platform.

We confidently look forward to submissions of varied development-oriented works from various disciplines oriented to impact society positively.

The Editorial Team are indebted to the University Management, authors, reviewers, staff of the journal and all who in diverse ways have supported in compiling this issue of the Journal.

Prof. Gabriel A. Teye
(Editor – In- Chief)