

EDITORIAL

This is the first issue of volume 7, number 1 of the UDS International Journal of Development (UDSIJD). This issue has thirteen papers, five papers in the Agricultural Sciences, six in the Humanities and one each in both Health Sciences and Medical Sciences.

The Journal aims at being the most preferred scholarly platform for researchers and academics to publish their empirical research output, policy analysis and topical issues. The journal is multi-disciplinary in nature with a developmental focus, and aims at publishing on a regular and sustained basis. We hope to have a wider representation in many more subject fields in the subsequent issues. We therefore encourage academics, researchers, development practitioners and policy makers to continue to submit manuscripts to this Journal.

The UDSIJJ is an open access platform which young academics, researchers, development practitioners and entrepreneurs can take advantage of in their quest for relevant and critical local content from Ghana and the African continent to enhance their research and developmental pursuits.

The Editorial Team wishes to sincerely thank the University Management, authors, reviewers and staff of the Journal and all those who in diverse ways have supported in making this issue of the journal a reality.
