

EDITORIAL (Vol. 11, No. 1, 2024)

The UDS International Journal of Development (UDSIJD) has published its first issue for the year 2024 (Volume 11, No. 1). There are a total of seven papers in this issue – two in the Agricultural Sciences and five in the Humanities. This issue is a bit late due to challenges beyond our control, the journal team apologizes for any inconvenience caused.

The UDSIJJ aims to remain an excellent and consistent platform where researchers in multidisciplinary fields can publish their scholarly output. The Journal is open access and therefore researchers, academics and development practitioners from the entire university and beyond are encouraged to take advantage of the platform to publish as well as access relevant content that would enhance their research and other information needs.

The Editorial Team would forever be thankful to the University Management, authors, reviewers and staff of the Journal, and all who contributed in various capacities to make the publication of this issue a success.

The Editor-in-Chief

Prof. G. A. Teye